

Luxaviation Launches US Market Expansion

Luxaviation Group, leading provider of tailored private luxury aviation services for global clientele, is pleased to launch an expansion of its Luxaviation brand in the US market. With the establishment of a new base in Miami, which brings access to a new fleet of planes, Luxaviation is doubling down on the US market for the first time in the heritage company's rich history, opening its renowned, impeccable service in the sky to a broad range of high-net-worth clientele across the country – and in a new sustainable way. The expansion also brings exclusive access to the company's newest collection of insider luxury services, including its Luxaviation Experiences and Luxaviation Fine Wines.

With the opening of its Miami hub by Group CEO Patrick Hansen last week, Luxaviation brings a dedicated US market concierge to clientele for the first time. Through this new hub, clientele will be able to coordinate private charter services to any destination around the world from any origin point in the US, with one of the largest and most diverse fleets of luxury planes in the industry at their disposal. Adding Luxaviation's renowned in-flight service with dedicated personnel who act as personal butlers in the sky, catering to all requests, a seamless luxury travel experience awaits.

Clay Lacy Aviation Offering Sustainable Aviation Fuel (SAF)

Clay Lacy Aviation is offering Sustainable Aviation Fuel (SAF) at their two California FBOs at Van Nuys Airport (KVNY) and John Wayne Orange County Airport (KSNA).

Sustainable Aviation Fuel is an important component of Clay Lacy's comprehensive sustainability strategy. World Fuel Services (World Fuel) began monthly SAF deliveries to both locations in March, with 2021 deliveries to total a minimum of 100,000 gallons. World Fuel is also providing renewable diesel (RD) fuel to power Clay Lacy's fuel trucks, GPUs, tugs and other ground support vehicles.

City of West Chicago, DuPage Airport Partner to Provide More Than 2,000 COVID-19 Vaccinations

The DuPage Airport Authority (DAA) converted its transient hangar into a COVID-19 vaccination site Wednesday, March 3rd, working in partnership with the City of West Chicago to distribute more than 2,000 doses of the vaccine.

The City partnered with food and drug retailer Albertsons to obtain the doses of the vaccine, then coordinated with the DAA to prepare the facility for the vaccine event.

"This is part of our mission and part of the reason we're here," said Stephen Davis, DAA Chairman of the Board. "When we learned Friday that these doses would be available, we worked through the weekend and right up to Wednesday to make sure we'd be ready. We're proud to support the City of West Chicago and the community and to play our part in the collective recovery effort."

The DAA team cleared out and relocated several aircraft from the 32,000 square foot hangar to allow for the setup of 10 vaccination stations. A steady stream of recipients flowed in and out of the hangar for their first dose of the vaccine.
