Below are a few updates on COVID-19 regulations from our members. Since requirements differ by city, please obtain the latest information from your destination FBO before your arrival.

Trans-Pacific 10-Day Quarantine Pre-Arrival Testing Remains the Same for the State of Hawaii

Despite the recent COVID-19 entry testing requirements set forth by the CDC for arriving international passengers, the testing procedures for Hawaii remain the same.

- In order to bypass the 10-day quarantine, travelers must have a negative COVID-19 test result prior to departure for the state of Hawaii from a state-approved Trusted Testing & Travel partner.
- A negative COVID-19 test result used for entry into the United States will not be accepted to bypass quarantine if the testing provider is not on the Trusted Testing & Travel partner list.
- If test results are not available before boarding the final leg of the trip, the traveler must quarantine for 10 days or the length of their stay, whichever is shorter.

New Requirement for All Air Passengers Traveling from the Bahamas to the USA

Starting January 26th, 2021, all air passengers traveling into the United States, including by private flights, air charter, and general aviation aircraft, will be required to show proof of a negative COVID-19 test result or documentation of having recovered from COVID-19, regardless of vaccination status.

All passengers must complete an attestation affirming their compliance with the CDC requirements and provide it to their aircraft operator. The test must be taken within three days before their flight to the USA departs.

For your ease and convenience, USA entry testing can be administered by the Family Medicine Center at Odyssey Aviation Nassau, near the Customs area.
